

Jaewon Lee composer and pianist

Jaewon Lee is a composer and pianist whose music unfolds through playful flows of memory, translating internalized emotions into sound.

His works have been performed by Ensemble Hwadam (upcoming), Seoul Modern Ensemble, and Project Ensemble O. He was selected to compose newly commissioned music for the Katherine Bernhardt exhibition at the Hangaram Art Museum in Seoul Arts Center. He was also chosen as an emerging composer for Shinuh Lee's The Road Not Taken concert series, for which he composed and performed a commissioned work at the IBK Chamber Hall in Seoul Arts Center. As a pianist and harpsichordist, he has appeared in a range of ensemble performances with Ensemble Hwadam, the SNU Ensemble Academy, and others.

Alongside his musical activities, Lee has conducted neuroscience research as an undergraduate researcher at the Intelligence and Interaction Research Center, Korea Institute of Science and Technology (KIST), focusing on computational models of human auditory cognition. His research has been presented at conferences of the Korean Society for Brain and Neural Sciences and the Korean Society for Music Perception and Cognition.
